Hi Maureen,

Thank you for having Nick and I out to SeaView on Tuesday. I have generated a design that fits in the space, which I have superimposed on the first image. The perspective is not perfectly matched to my photograph angle, as you can tell by the top of the railing, but it gives you a rough idea how it could look in the space. The second photo shows the stairs looking down on them with the background not matched.

I will see if I can place this in a google earth image next week.

Starting and ending where we wanted to with a 30 degree angle eliminates the mid landing. We could handle this different ways, but I wanted to show you what the most simple option looks like first.

This design uses 39 steps and no landing, so it represents a cost reduction as designed.

Have a great holiday, and I look forward to speaking with you next week.

Best regards,

Steve Merriam

Steve,

These images are excellent for having the discussion. Thank you. For your information, my next step is to talk with the Conservation Committee about this option at the December meeting, and confirm the date of the January meeting with the neighborhood.

Maureen
